

A Call for Pearline

brings the best washing compound in the world, and the or ginal one—all others are imitations. It costs no more than common soap. It does more than soap's work, and half or your own besides. Anything that needs cleaning can be washed with it-winout scouring, rubbing and scrubbing, and with absolute safety. Mace its acquaint-ance; millions of women call it their best friend.

Every grocer keeps it, because he has constant calls for it.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—
Fearlineds never peddled, and if your grocer sends you some dothe honest hing—send it back.

This blizzard, beginning with rain and winding up with wind and snow and plenty of both, afflicted all classes of people, completely obstructing travel and people completely obstructing travel and soluting the city by shutting off communication by both wire and rail. This concentration of the force of the elements formed an irresistible power and the demornization of the telegraph and telephone service was complete and without transferric.

Stanford was absent from the Capital without a pair. Had he been paired with a Democrat it would have been impossible to have laid uside the resolution. It remains to be seen what he will do now that the responsibility rests upon him.

An Inexcusable Policy.

THE WHIG has no interest in Mr. Looney's remarks save as they reflect a purpose on the part of the advocates of Australian ballot to arraign the motives of those opposing the adoption of the system in this State. Having labelled this move ballot reform" its champions seek to influence members of the Legislature by intimating that a vote rgainst it will be regarded as a blow at the purity of elections. This is exactly the same course adopted two years ago and we protest that it is an unwarranted insult to many of the ablest men to the Legislature. There is ample. opportunity for an tronest difference of opin on on this question, and the insolent presents of the men who are trying to force this needless legislation through, that they enjoy a monopoly of the integr ty of the State will be justly resented, not only by those who are honorably opmostno the measure, but by those who are looking for information in a fair discussion for and against it.

The talk about the free use of money in our elections is a familiar cloak behind which the Democrate have sought to hide Connecticul MITEL Life Insurance Co., the humiliation of their repeated defeats in this State. There is not a State in the Union freer from elecwassertion we install thuse States, that have adirpted this particular method of Young. In Massachusetts, the State most frequently pointed to by the advocates scheme by which the Boston Herald openly declared the law could be violated just o long as a voter could be found to be bribed or intimidated. Yet in spite of this significant admission we are told that Massachusetts of all other States is the one where the law worked most successfully. That it is an aid rather than a hindrance to election frauds is found in the remark of an Alabama paper which declared that give the South the Australian ballot and Congress might pass all the Election bills it pleased. This is an expert opinion from a section where fraud rules the ballot box. As to the expense of the system it is a, serious question for the taxpavers to consider, especially as there is nothing in the condition of our elections to call for this London. additional burden. The one item of election officers imposed in extra cost of $150,-000 on the State of New York and at the same time the law proved no obstacle in the nath of Tammany Hall, un organization that has been as bitterly denounced for its political corruption by the Mugwump-Democratic press as by Republican' papers. Nor did it prove any incentive to the nomination of capable and honest men. because Col. John R. Fellows was one of the successful Tammany Congressional candidates, and his political villianvibas filled columns of the New York World, the leading Democratic paper not only of the Empire State but of the country.

This Legislature will make no mistake if it follows the example of its predecessor and declines to force this expensive, complicated and ineffective system upon the people of Maine.

THE WHIG AND COURIER FOR 1891

With the opening of the new year THE BAR-GOR DAILY WHIG AND COURER began the publication of its fifty-eighth volume. This is the era of progress and in no respect is this great truth more forcibly illustrated than in the improvements that mark the publication of, a newspaper. The live paper to day is not only the medium through which the reader leeps himself informed on the current voltage is not only the medium through which the reader leeps himself informed on the current or the recombines the attractions heretofore only found in the magazine with a correct and fresh news summary each day. In the onward much of us. We are selling them away below cost. . THE DAILY WHIG

The Wine will continue its carnest and fearless advocacy of the Republican principles and general line of public policy, of which it has so long been a prominent and influential champion, while its columns will ever premote all that leads to the development of the grand old State of Maine.

Eurnesity appreciating the cortial support that has been given our efforts in pust years, we assure our readers that neither labor nor expense will be spared to make the paper for 1891 better than ever before.

THE WHIG AND COURIER will be sent by mail, postage paid, at the following rates, invariably in advance: $3.00 per year; $4.00 for 6 months; $2.00 for 3 months; 15 cente for I week; single copies 3 cents.

They are nearly all new, stylish goods, made to order for us last fall and will be just as good next season as this, but we can't afford to carry them over. We want the money now. Plush Goods, as every one knows, will be much higher next season, but we bave included them in the SWEEPING MARKDOWN. These for 10 days and for cash only. After that we shall ask regular prices. PHILADELPHIA, Jar. 26. The gorge in the Surquanna is still intact. From the bridge, a distance of some miles the river is one mass of pled up cakes of ice. The heavy freshess or the last few days have driven the lose with great force against the bridge and it has been moved from its foundation to a slight extent. Though the falling of the water has removed any immediate apprehension, it is feared that another freshet would result in the bridge giving way. If this should happen it is believed the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company's bridge at Caxton of ill almost certainly be swept away. To guard against this the railroad people are watching the situation picosely, and if the Tunkhapanock bridge should move much more they will set it on free to save their own bridge which is an iron structure. There are some patent medicines that are more marvellous than a dozen doctors' prescriptions, but they're not those that profess to cure everything.

Everybody, now and then feels "run down," "played, out." They've the will, but no power to generate vitality. They're not sick enough to call a doctor, but just too sick to be well. That's where the right kind of a paten: medicine conies in, and does for a dollar what the doctor wouldn't do for less than five or ten-

But Mabel and Georgia Marshall met at the parlor door. There were dore hearts at Ryan in the week that followed. As had long been anticipated, orders cume for the summer practice march to the Indian territory, and the Eleventh—band and allowed had jog sed away, leaving Maj. Kenyon to command the post, with his little battalion of infantry to guard it. The orders were received two days after Welsh's enlivening tour of guard duty. The command was to march in forty-eight hours, equipped for field service, and Licut. Hearn, with the commanders was the other troop commanders, was the other troop commanders, was occupied, every instant in getting his horses and men in thorough shape. Kenyon and Lane, after consultation among some of his friends, had induced the young fellow to promise not to open one of the marked copies of the course of the property which now began to crowd no open one or the market copies or the newspapers which now began to crowd in with every final, but to leave them all to be considered by the little council of three, in whose hunds he had been presented to mark his news of three, in whose hands he had been persuaded to rest his case.

He had written a full denial of The Palladium's scandalous statements with regard to his financial entanglements; and a full description, as has already been told, of the original trouble at the trader's store with Private Welsh. These had both been handed to Col. Morrisi in his office. No one had heard from Lawler. No one knew just exactly what disposition the colonel had made of these papers. Mr. Abrans, too, had disappeared the day after Welsh's tour of guard duty; but the whole garrison now was flooded with newspapers by the hundred. It would seem as if the guild of the western, press had resolved on a sudden and simultaneous assault on the army in general, and as if Fort Ryan was the vortex of the storm. Sensational the vortex of the storm. Sensational dispatches were jublished from various quarters. Other journals, envious of The Pulladium sexploit, upgarthed other The rational session in the army for general worthlessness, and with faming head high dig layed to a sympathizing public the tall of efficial abuse and tyranny which had compelled these several gallant and patriotic sons of America to quit the service they were so well fitted to adorn. Dozens of tramps and tatterdemalions Dozens of tramps and tatterdemations reaped sudden and unexpected harvest of electhosyn try quarters and lunches from gaping audiences in the beer salonis by detailing individual experiences of their own when serving under Lieut. This or That, in the Eleventh horse or the Thirty-third foot. Dozens of Munchaisens wore the reporters' pencils down to the wood with details of their harrowing sufferings. Then the editorials began, and 'grayely lectured the rials began, and gravely lectured the prople on the wrongs of the whole sys-tem—the unrepublican character of ah army apyllow, the repugnance in the American mind to all idea of discipline. Meantime of course The Palladiam was firing for shot by the top, and new so called scandals at Ryan, fresh outrages on the helpless and downtrodden soldiery were the subjects of Mr. Abran's lurid delineations, until it was to be wondered at that in their wright the offended public did not wine the foul blot on their civil zation from the face of the It was on Friday evening that in anfiring at department headquarters, Cols DR. JOHN F. TRUE'S Morris received a message that at least put him out of uncertainty. That day The Palladium had outdone itself, and no one not conversant with the illimit able faculties of the paid correspondent can begin to imagine the heroic size attained in its columns by the incident briefly sketched in the last chapter: 'Continued' (Persecution of Trooper Welsh! Heaped Up Humiliations on His Head! Forced to Show Slavish Homage to His Insulter! Helpless Wrath of Comrades!" etc. The details of the incident, as told by the special correspondent, lost nothing of sensationalism, and Lieut, Lewis came in now for his share of cobloquy. Poor Welsh was represented as having been marched out, and with brutal curses compelled to salute Lieut, Hearn, despite the fact that he as member of the guard, was by law and regulations exempted from the requirement. "In vain did the young" requirement. In an did the joing soldier plead that paragraph 1391 of the regulations fully excused him. His releatless persecutors defied the laws of congress, and compelled him to 'stand and deliver' for the purpose of adding to the indignities already heared upon him. the indignities already heaped upon him. Could the readers of The Palladium bave heard the low, deep mutterings of the men in the garrison this night no mutiny on their part need have surprised The editor, too, backed up his correspondent in a three-quarter column as-scult on the ridiculous etiquette of the army. "It may be," he said, "all well army. "It may be," he said, "all well enough in the conscripted camps of intelligence of the soldiers of free America that because a beardless boy happens to have a strap upon his shoulder thousands of scarred veterans should be compelled to do him homage. The whole idea of the salute is repagnant to the re-publican mind and should be abolished; ther use for an army, why stop at the

No doubt the ninety-and-nine of The Palla liums readers thought their editor was sound and were as opposed to the idea of that courtesy which is officially declared to be "indispensable among military men." as to any exhibition thereof in the streets of their own peaceful and remarkably well regulated metropolis.

Bu. Col. Morris was himself worully perturbed about this time. After immo-lating Cross and other officers by name, as was to be expected, The Palladium man had taken to poking ugly little in-sinuations at the post commander, and this, thought Morris, was the height to tins, thought-morris, was the height of ingratitude. He was in no pleasant mood when the men came marching up from stables, and it stung him to see how cordial everybody was to Hearn, who, confound it was the cause of the whole row. The telegram he had just received settled that matter once and for all; yet he was glad he had an adju-tant on whom to devolve the coming

Ever since Hearn's trouble began Cap-tain and Mrs. Lane had lost to opportu-nity to make him understand that tany nity to make him understand that keep west devotedly his friends; and that if he would be to come to them in his leads of other wrong the shelter of their home. Lee weldome of their fireids, would be some complication at least for the hards free-ment accorded to him by the world at large. But an unexpected ally had seen discovered. Hearn, who had at first held aloo ered. Hearn, who had at first held aloof in solitide, brooding over his troubles, began to show decided readiness to come. And though at all fimes grate-ful and most attentive to Mrs. Lane, that clear sighted young matron speed-ily noted how his handsoure blue eyes would wander about in search of her quietly observant friend, and that ever gives the night of her, till; with Lawler since the night of her tilt with Lawler Miss Marshall's interest in the case had been quadrupled. Now, this was not exactly what Mrs. Lane had planned. exactly what Mrs. Lane had planned. She wanted Georgia to mirry in the army, but she also wanted, and saw nothing to the least unreasonable in so wanting to select that spirited young woman's husband for her. She d d not for a moment think that there was any danger of Georgia's falling in love with Hearn.

He was several years her senior to be sure; he was bandsome, distinguished as a soldier, a man of unimpeachable chara solder, a mad of unimpeat that the argued, "he is so much younger for his years than Georgia for hers. 'She had had to think so much for herself, and now the man shet should narry was—well, not crabbe held Maj. Kenyon, of well, not crabbeth did Maj. Kenyon, of course; he was a widower, your and yet susceptible. It was only too plain that he leved to come to the house and talk with Miss Marshall by the hour, especially when the cavalryman were all down at stables. Neither did she want the doctor, whom Jeannette McCrea could have if she would only make up her mind to drop Jan Wallaze, who was now so devoted that the yearning medical man had no chance whatever. No, ical man had no chance whatever. No, she didn't see, after all, just the right man for Georgin; still she had always thought of some one so much older, utterly ignoring the fact that when left to themselves most women have very different views of their own Not'n word had she uttered to Georgia of course, but to her loving and indulgent spories she had gone so ar as to say:

"It is levely to see how he's beginning ical man had no chance whatever. No. "It is lovely to see how he is beginning to find comfort in here society; but, Fred — And madame breaks off, irreso-

"Inst suppose what, Mr. Lane—that it should snow before Septanber?"
"Now, Fred, you know; or else you haven't, any eyes for."
"I haven't—except for one." says Lane, parlying the situation with the very words he knows will most delight her.
"You absurd boy!" But she comes fluttering across the room to reward him as to decerves. "What I mean is, Georgia might get to think of him."
"Well, everybody is thinking of him just now, and in the light of such a catastrophe I suppose I'd have to make him think of her."
"He does now; and if he doesn't—you can't make people fall in lotal can you?" "Agreed. Mrs. Wisehe'd. Neither can you prevent it, can you? I know I

"The colone wignes are what on to assume command of C troop temporarity. I'm ordered to place Heara in arrest," was the answer, in tones that trembled a little despite Mason's efforts at impassibility.

Lane's hand was extended as though

"My heaven, Hearn! I thought to find you over home, or I would never have come here on such an errand."

"Never mind; I am with you. Goodby, captain; say good afternoon to—to the halies for me."

By Jove! I'm going over with you," said Lane, snatching a forage cap and springing down the steps. He did not want to encounter the questioning eyes within.

But Mabel and Georgia Marshall met. at the parlor door.

Several weeks ago, a Rockland gentle-man went with his tamily to New York, man went with his tamily to New York, leaving his house, as he supposed, securely closed. Some time atterward, the man who had supplied the family with butter came with a firkin. Fading the back door unfastened, but, no one at home, he walked but the kitchen and left the butter. Recently he came with another lot, and walking in, found the butter just where he left it some time before. Inquiry showed that the absentee had forgotten to fasten the back door on leaving, and for several weeks the house had been open to anybody that chose to enter. Nothing had been disturbed. The general impression that houses are locked when their inmates go away or go to bed, is the best lock of all, Burglars never search for uniocked doors.
